
EVERETT FIGHTS TO BREAK 'CROWD' LINE' EVERETT SCHOOL

GIRL STAYS ALL DAY IN CORRIDOR

Result of Trying to Break Up the "Jim Crow" Class, Says Preacher

A court injunction, restraining Everett school authorities from transferring twelve-year-old Ruth Storms from the Centre to the Parlin grammar school, is to be sought by Rev. Fordyce H. Storms, colored Evangelical minister.

He has advised his daughter to sit in the corridor of the Centre School until Principal J. Henry Clegg admits her, and there she has sat for two of the first three days of school, barred from the company of her playmates while they study and recite.

Ruth, according to her father, is only one of three of his eleven children who have been bullied around in the Everett schools. A boy and girl were driven out and are now working, he declares, because of racial prejudice transfers into industrial classes.

"JIM CROW" CLASS.
Behind the transfer of Ruth, declares Mr. Storms, lies his battle of a year ago to break up a "Jim Crow" class established by a Centre School teacher, wherein colored girls and white girls were segregated in the schoolroom and forced to enter and leave school separately.

"I protested Ruth's transfer to the Parlin school because the seventh grade there is a slower class, under the Everett system," said Mr. Storms.

The authorities admitted they didn't want to demote her but said there was no room for her at the Centre School.

The Parlin School is three times farther away from our home. I complained and they put her in the Lincoln School, a mile from our home, and too far for any girl to walk four times a day.

SITS IN THE CORRIDOR.
"Ruth was injured and cannot walk too far. Besides, the teachers there sent her back because she was provided with no transfer card."

"In the first three days of school she was in three different schools. I took her back to the Centre School and demanded that they admit her. When they refused, I told her to sit in a chair in the corridor and there she will remain."

I am prepared to get an injunction in court if the school board does not immediately admit her where she belongs. Let them transfer hardy boys to distant schools."

MUST HAVE EDUCATION.
"I realize that in the business world there is discrimination against colored people, but that is all the more reason why in school our children must get the best education obtainable."

"I won't have my children transferred without reason into inferior classes."

The Everett school authorities say any discrimination against colored people that lack of room at the Centre School caused the transfer of Ruth Storms and several others.

A new addition to the Centre School building, more than doubling its capacity, has just been opened.

MRS. GARNHUM GEORGE B. GARNHUM

WOMEN GO ON HUNT FOR PRINCE

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 12 (I.N.S.)—There was another hunt by the fashionable of Long Island today, but from a fox hunt it developed into a hunt for the Prince of Wales.

Sixty persons, many of them women in smart riding habits, gathered on the Fifth Hills estate shortly after 5 o'clock. It was a mile from the James A. Burden home, where the Prince is a house guest.

Many women wearing riding habits under long cloaks, came to the field in motor cars, having sent their horses ahead of them. The word had gone about that Wales was going on the hunt.

In the dewed camp of the morning men and women, and impatient horses chased about a cluster of dogs waiting for H. R. H.

ARE LONG IN LEAKY TENT
Husband in Hospital and Family, Losing Home, Have No Place to Go

Turned out of their little home on April 1, a mother and her three small children are living in a leaky tent in an isolated section of the town of Worcester.

With Winter coming on, they have no place to go, and their unhappy situation is aggravated by the fact that the mother expects another child from the tent before November.

George B. Garnham, the husband and father, is in the Newton Hospital, where his leg was amputated recently following an auto accident.

He is a World War veteran, having served eighteen months overseas. At the conclusion of hostilities he married the pretty little woman who now is in such deplorable circumstances.

When a reporter reached her crude abode in the Westwood woods Mrs. Garnham was just returning from the home of a neighbor about five minutes distant up the road weighed down with a large tin pail filled with water to use in preparing the supper.

Outside the tent, which contained two army cots—the sleeping quarters of this family—were playing three healthy, blonde, blue-eyed youngsters, garbed by "Sleepy" in a faded outfit.

Congressman Peter F. Tague of Charleston will abide by the decision of the voters of the Tenth Congressional District when they nominated John J. Douglas to succeed him in the recent primary election. He failed to file papers for a recount.

Both Arthur W. Sullivan, who defeated James H. Brennan for the nomination on the Democratic ticket as register of probate, and Mr. Brennan filed papers with the election commissioners at City Hall for a recount in a number of wards.

COOLIDGE WILL TAKE STUMP IF CALLED

White House Announces President Is Ready for Any Emergency

Washington, Sept. 12.—President Coolidge will depart from the program laid down for him by his managers and take the stump if conditions develop before the end of the campaign to demand that the President be re-elected.

This was announced in response to an inquiry at the White House. The statement has been made frequently by those in charge of the Republican campaign that the President would not make any purely political speeches, but confine his addresses to non-partisan occasions.

For the present, however, Mr. Coolidge does not know whether he will make any political speeches in Washington or elsewhere. It all depends upon circumstances and what occasion may be when the time comes for reaching a decision. He does expect, though, that the occasion will arise for radio speeches.

It was announced that the President expected to go to Philadelphia to deliver an address on the occasion of the 100th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, Thursday, September 17.

He also will make a brief address to 4,800 retail druggists soon to meet in the capital.

WOMEN'S ISSUE PLEA TO BACK LA FOLLETTE

Washington, Sept. 12. (Universal).—The women's division of the La Follette-Wheeler campaign committee took advantage of Defense Day to issue a statement declaring the election of the Progressive ticket constitutes the best defense of the nation "against attacks from enemies within." The statement said:

"To the progressive women of America, the home guard of the nation, Defense Day conveys a more immediate charge, a more practical need—that of protection from attacks from within."

"The women of the nation know that the most insidious foe are the traitors in one's own household. The foreign enemy is the obvious one. He can be guarded against, but the traitors at home who sap the integrity and effectiveness of the institutions upon which the very life of the nation itself depends, are the real danger, when the women of America seek defense."

"We are at peace with the world. The patriotism that is needed today in America is that patriotism that will face the shot and shell of ridicule, and misrepresentation, patriotism that will face political death, if need be, to defend the nation against the Fills, the Daughertys and the Forbes who would stab their country in the back."

"Women in America are turning to the progressive movement under the leadership of La Follette and Wheeler because they see in it the hope of a new ideal."

FOSTER RAPS DEMOCRATS, G. O. P. AND PROGRESSIVES

Philadelphia, Sept. 12.—Attacking the Republican, Democratic and Independent parties William M. Foster of New York, Presidential candidate of the Workers' Party of America, addressed an enthusiastic audience of 1,500 in Music Fund Hall. "I don't expect to be elected this year," he said. "But the very fact that we can openly hold a Communist meeting and that I have the great honor of being the first Presidential candidate on the Communist ticket shows the working class in America has progressed since the war."

POLITICIANS ARE SPEEDING UP CAMPAIGN

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Governor Smith is giving serious thought to the Democratic political situation in New York but remains firm in his refusal to accept the gubernatorial nomination for the third time. The Governor concluded his visit here as he began it, in silence, so far as politics is concerned.

Washington, Sept. 12.—Reports that President Coolidge might speak in the Middle West were characterized by Chairman Clem Weaver of the Democratic National Committee as "a cry for help" from Republican state managers in that section.

Madison, Neb., Sept. 12.—Amid picturesque rural setting, Governor Charles W. Bryan launched his home State campaign at the Madison county fair grounds here with a renewed attack on the Republican administration for "unfriendliness" to the farmers and outline of the principles for which the Democratic party stands to improve agricultural conditions.

Washington, Sept. 12.—A prediction that John W. Davis will carry every Western State in which he has spoken thus far in the campaign, was sent to Democratic headquarters by Senator Pittman, chairman of the Democratic speakers bureau. The Democratic Party will carry the Southwest and several States of the Middle West, including Ohio, asserted statements put out at Democratic headquarters.

Former Mayor Andrew J. Peters, director of finance in charge of Massachusetts collections for the Democratic National Committee campaign fund, learned of his election to the Davis Congressional Colleague Club, composed of present and former senators and representatives who served with Candidate John W. Davis in the 32d and 33d Congresses (1911-13). Other members are Gen. Isaac Sharpwood of Ohio, Maj. C. M. Steadman of North Carolina, George Whitely, James M. Cox and Cordell Hull.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Sept. 12.—Commenting on National Defense Day in an address here, John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President, berated the Coolidge administration for permitting the naval forces of the country to drop below the 3-2 ratio fixed by the Washington conference.

ANALANCHE OF NEW DRAMA HITS TOWN

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

WITH something of a belated start, the full force of the new theatrical season descends upon the town on Monday—a veritable flood of new attractions, some heavy, some light, some tame to good music and all of them hoping for the best. The important event of the week will be the reopening of the Copley under Shubert management, where players will have their first glimpse of Lucille LaVerne in "Sun Up," a play which managed very well in New York and Chicago last season, drawing favor from the critics and dollars from the public. It tells a general story of law-breaking by hardy, ignorant mountaineers in a region where moonshine trickles through hidden stills and where women smoke coon-coco pipes. Advance notices indicate "Sun Up" as a strong drama for strong people.

HARDLY less important will be the arrival of "Spring Cleaning," which opens at the Plymouth on Tuesday, in which you are asked to pay close heed to the quality of performances submitted by a quartet of really first-rate players. These are Violet Hemming, Arthur Byron, Estelle Winwood and A. E. Matthews, who held the Broadway New Yorker by the ears for a season and even made some of him gasp for breath. "Spring Cleaning" is an unmitigated frank presentation of what's what in London's best circle.

FOR eye and ear entertainment, the new week will provide "Innocent Eyes" at the Shubert, "Mr. Battling Butler" at the Majestic and "Ada-May" in "Lollipop" at the Tremont. "Innocent Eyes" comes direct from the Winter Garden, where things are neither too pure to be dull nor too simple to be the first business man who new and then finds it necessary to entertain on-town buyers. "Innocent Eyes," he said, has everything to please the human eye from plush draped to living pictures, flanked by a chorus of seventy-five dancing young things. That's a lot of girls for one show.

FOR plain musical comedy, or farce with music, you will have "Mr. Battling Butler" revealed in the person of Charles Ruggles, who many times has gone through fearful domestic trials in farce, doing his bit for Al Woods in the popular bedroom variety—without music. As Battling Butler he finds himself in familiar territory, but by complications that are more humorous than deadly. There have been times when we had difficulty in restraining a well-meant blush for Mr. Ruggles, but were told there is no cause for alarm in "Mr. Battling Butler."

WITH Ada-May in "Lollipop" an old friend returns, as this spirited musical conception began its career at the Tremont last season. Ada-May, who once possessed a last name, Weeks, sliced it off her professional title a year ago at the suggestion of Henry W. Savage, who gave her a nice salary, and Zella Sears, who writes plays for her. On the former visit "Lollipop" caught the public fancy from the start and carried along on Tremont street for many weeks. It is a dancing and singing entertainment of the customary Savage refinement.

THE air is to be filled with opera, too, as De Wolfe Hopper moves into the Boston Opera House tonight with "The Mikado." Mr. Hopper expects to duplicate here what he has achieved in other large cities, where the revival of popular light opera of other days was found to be a profitable venture from every angle. Following "The Mikado," Mr. Hopper expects to present "Pinafore," "Robin Hood," "Pirates of Penzance," "The Yeomen of the Guard," "Wang," "Princess of Pilsen," "Fire Fly," "The Chocolate Soldier" and "The Chimes of Normandy."

IN the film world Paramount will send its newest feature to the Fenway—Thomas Meighan in "The Alaskan." Meighan, as a box office attraction, has few rivals in the field of drama, and his producers are making a great deal of the fact that now, for the first time, he has carried his last in the Arctic Circle, where the picture is a brand of love making in which he excels is carried on in zero atmosphere and amid piles of snow and ice.

EXIT Mr. Chorus Man! Good-by—and good luck! That is the dictum of L. Lawrence Weber, who has given us "Little Jesse James" with nothing more in the way of title than eight high-speaking young women. The chorus man is done, asserts Mr. Weber, and I believe he is finished for all time in musical comedy. A smart show does not require anything more than a good book, hitting music and a competent cast. If you have those things, what possible help can a chorus man, or any number of him, provide? In "Little Jesse James" I have cut the feminine chorus down to eight people—but I picked my girls. If you have seen the show you know they are the principle, making their own contribution to the play of the piece. They are chorus girls in name only, for they can be depended upon to take things in their own hands on occasion and do a good job. The success of "Little Jesse James" has convinced me that the chorus man is an useless appendage if your show is good. I never expect to have another on my salary list. And that's that.

Sousa, at Seventy, Sizzles With Vitality

Does anybody ever think of John Philip Sousa as being so many years old? The rhetorical question is inspired by the fact that the March King will be seventy in November, and that he is undertaking his 32nd tour with his band as if he were thirty or under.

COODGE PAYS TRIBUTE TO PERSHING

Washington, Sept. 13.—John C. Coodge ended his forty-two years of active service in the army at noon today with a last signal honor paid him in the issuance of an executive announcement by President Coodge expressing the Nation's indebtedness for the service which was his leadership of the American forces in the World war.

Only in the rare instances of history in which a retiring officer has reached the highest rank has there been precedent for the honor conferred upon General Pershing in the executive order in which the President today extended to him "new thanks of the Nation for his eminent services."

PRaise for General.
The President added that he felt certain that I voice the sentiment of the entire citizenry of the Republic in wishing him long life, happiness and prosperity in the retirement he has so richly earned.

The text of the order, which was read to the army as a general order, follows:

In announcing the termination of this distinguished soldier's active military career, it is deemed appropriate to remind the country of his eminent services and of the nation's obligation to one whose accomplishments contributed so largely to the defense of the world's liberties.

The American troops under his command, by their presence, high qualities and skillful management, assisted materially in the defeat of the Central Powers of Europe which resulted in the freedom of civilization from autocratic rule.

GREAT SERVICE TO NATION.
He is one of the very few officers who have held the rank of general in the permanent military establishment of the United States, and his supreme command over much the largest body of troops ever called into action by the United States Government.

"His services to the world in the greatest conflict in which military forces have ever been engaged, have been recognized through the award of highest decorations by the governing authorities of Belgium, Great Britain, China, Czechoslovakia, France, Greece, Italy, Japan, Montenegro, Poland, Panama, Rumania, and Serbia.

REOPEN FIGHT ON EVERETT GARAGE

One of the hottest fights to stir the creation of a garage and gasoline station that Everett has seen in years is now in the making.

At the corner of Clinton and Clinton streets, Everett, is a large plot of land. In past years the owner, Mr. F. J. Feltman, has tried three times to build a garage.

Now the fight has begun again and next week it will be held in the State House before the State fire marshal to whom the neighbors have appealed as a last resort to stop the erection of a garage.

Headed by Mrs. Esther Freeman, who has organized and Mrs. Clara Regan, who now says the fight is only a matter of time, the neighbors have organized a committee to oppose the garage.

The State fire marshal has been appointed to hear the case. The neighbors have organized a committee to oppose the garage.

Goodwin Warns All Autoists to Attend to Their Lights

One result of the day of daylight saving, which comes Sunday, September 24, will be that autos and trucks must be lighted at least an hour earlier at night.

Frank A. Goodwin, State Registrar of Motor Vehicles, points out that car owners, particularly truck owners, had better be prepared for the change.

During the summer, with daylight saving in force, many trucks have been out after dark and were not equipped with lights.

The setting back of clocks and the hour of dark, arriving earlier as autumn progresses, they will need lights and will be compelled to carry them.
